

Application for Financial Aid 2022–2023

As a community dedicated to Buddhist liberal education, DRBU strives to make the opportunity to study here a reality for all accepted students, regardless of financial circumstances.

Financial aid at DRBU is entirely need-based, and we are committed to meeting the demonstrated need of all students. Financial aid is available for all four years of the undergraduate program and two years of the graduate program. Students apply for aid annually, and each year we review the financial needs for all students, taking into account changes in the student's or family's financial circumstances.

While the primary responsibility to pay for college lies with the student and the family, DRBU is committed to making sure family income does not distract students from their academic goals. Each financial aid package is customized to meet the needs of the particular student, through a combination of Service Scholarships (work study) and University Grant.

For the 2022–2023 academic year, students and parents will not be asked to take out government loans as part of the financial aid package.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION (Optional)

Please describe any special circumstances which impact your (and your parents’) ability to pay for your DRBU education. You may provide additional information regarding any dislocated workers in the family, medical expenses not covered by insurance, support of extended family members or other personal financial circumstances.

DRBU offers need-based scholarships for students affected by catastrophic disasters such as the Mendocino Complex Fire, Camp Fire, or Hurricane Harvey. A disaster is defined as a “sudden occurrence which inflicts widespread catastrophic damage to a large geographic area and/or which generally affects a large number of individuals.” Disasters can be both natural and human-made. The applicant must have disaster-relief status with FEMA or comparable agency, or otherwise demonstrate financial need as a result of a loss of income or livelihood, or a loss or damage to home or property. All financial aid recipients are expected to participate in the DRBU work-study program. Use extra sheets of paper as needed.
